I stress fundamentals and develop/finetune proper mechanics involved with shooting, dribbling, passing and footwork. All messaging will be positive and designed to encourage players to keep improving. My goal is to instill in each player the confidence to accomplish the goal(s) he or she desires on the basketball court and in life.

"Lawrence Moten was the classic swingman player, able to play shooting guard and small forward. From the moment he first stepped on the court as a freshman, Moten displayed tremendous court awareness. He always seemed to be in the right position, make the right pass,

and make
the crucial shots.

He possessed both a good perimeter shot and a fast slashing move to the hoop that made him difficult to defend.

Moten never forced the action, instead playing entirely within the flow of the game. Often a game would end and you would be surprised that he had 20 points. His smooth style of play earned him the moniker:

"Poetry in Moten."
